

would refer to Him at that time as 'Gok Tanri', which means Sky God in Turkish.

I always knew Turks were a very ancient race and that Turkish was one of the oldest original languages in the world. Now, I have no doubts that many of the ancient native Americans & the Turkic peoples in Central Asia were of the same race and at that very early age spoke the Turkish language. I believe that 'Zul Carnaign' was our common ancestor and prophet. I have discovered too many names of mountains, rivers, lakes, etc., that have perfectly fitting meanings in Turkish, here in the States, Canada, Alaska, and even in South America, to be just coincidental.

The Koran mentions how 'Zul Carnaign' during his travels, came across a people living in a valley between two mountains, who spoke a different language. So evidently, they already had different languages in the world at that time, but probably not so many. They asked him for his help against two other hostile peoples named Gog and Magog, who apparently kept attacking them, coming upon them at the mountain pass. 'Zul Carnaign' saved them by building an enormous wall (mentioned as door in the Koran) between the two mountains. I strongly believe this mountain 'door' the Koran tells about is the Tehachapie mountains in California.

In Turkish 'Tehacum Kapi' would have the meaning below, which makes perfect sense:

Tehacum: 1. a rushing or crowding together. 2. a rushing at, an attacking one another; a concerted rush or attack.

Kapi: door, gate

Of course over time the pronunciation of Tehacum Kapi, could have changed slightly to finally end up as Tehachapie.

Also, the Koran says that before the end, God will bring this door down, in rubbles, level with the ground. Is it just a coincidence that after all these years geologists have discovered a major fault line running directly under the Tehachapie mountains?

There are so many other interesting & fascinating revelations made in the Koran, nearly 1400 years ago, that concur with the scientific discoveries being made today, with the advance of our knowledge and technology.

I find most interesting the parts about Jesus Christ and Virgin Mary. You may be surprised to find that after some 670 odd years of Jesus' ascension to heaven, the Holy Koran was revealed to prophet Mohammed by God, confirming the validity of Jesus as the Messiah & the Word of God, having been born miraculously from Virgin Mary. But it also states clearly that Jesus is not God or a part of Him. God Almighty is One, everything and everyone else is His creation and subject to Him.

I have already written too long and taken up too much of your time. I hope in the future the Turkic Peoples in Central Asia and the Native Americans here can have closer ties and find out more about each other. May God bless you all,
