FLASH REPORT
from Helen and Harville

Okay, everyone, it's time to make sure that you've got plenty of stock in your favorite long distance telephone company, because the Hunt/Hendrix clan will soon be loading our covered wagon and heading to the expansive Southwest!

It is with a mixture of excitement and sadness that we leave our New York home to relocate where the tumbleweeds dwell! But, after years of being in the concrete jungle of New York City, our southern hearts demanded some attention--and space--to expand.

While we'll be moving closer to where some of you are located, some might find themselves further away then when we were in New York. We simply wanted to make sure that all of you realize we still care, and would love to see you from time to time (if you ever find yourself in the New Mexico area, that is!).

Enclosed is a little 'fact sheet' if any of you are interested in some of the finer details.

Know that, wherever we find ourselves, we keep each of you in our hearts!
