

are blocking my view of the television." Perhaps if we can somehow create a greater understanding of the power of storytelling, no family elder of any culture will receive that kind of response from a child."