As you know, South Africa's first universal suffrage election has now been provisionally scheduled for April 27, 1994. When we meet on July 1, that will be less than 10 months away. To avoid further delay, the formal organizational and start-up steps for SAFE will be taken this week by an initial group of five conveniently located and willing directors: Wayne Fredericks, Leon Higginbotham, Anthony O'Reilly, Theodore Sorensen and Maurice Tempelsman. However, pending establishment of an office for SAFE, correspondence and questions can continue to be directed to my attention. I look forward to seeing you on July 1.

Sincerely,

Theodore C. Sorensen
