

about his work? At any rate, I would be curious to know if the Nation does have a publishing program and to what extent the latest technology has been put to use. As you may know, the technological revolution in the publishing field has reduced costs by over 80% and has put professional page production within reach of any small business.

Just to reiterate what I wrote in my book review: your autobiography has been an inspiration to me and I hope to many others. I would very much like to relay the continuing story of Cherokee resurgence to BIDOM's readers, so I hope we will be in touch in the future.

Yours sincerely,
