

John Brown, one of the best chiefs the tribe ever had. He was for more than twenty years at the head of the tribe and, being a man of intellect and sound judgment, he foresaw what must happen to the Indians and led them to a satisfactory treaty with the government in advance of all others. This gave the Seminoles a great advantage over the other tribes, and they have maintained it.