EDITORIAL ON J. F. BROWN

On the evening of Wednesday Nov. 8th, four highwaymen held up Gov. J. A. Brown and Treasurer A. J. Jack, with the governor's two nephews, J. W. and Solomon Brown, and his father-in-law, G. A. Alexander, a councillor of the Creek nation, and secured booty to the amount of $1,500 or more -- $1,000 in money, four gold and two silver watches and dry goods, jewelry, shoes, saddles, etc. The robbery took place at Gov. Brown's store at Sasakwa, Seminole nation, about 100 miles east of Oklahoma City. The details as the Times-Journal learns them from Mr. J. A. Sechrest, who has just returned from Wewoka, are as follows:

Just about dusk on that evening two men came into the store and purchased a box of cartridges. After loafing around a few minutes they went out, but almost immediately returned with two companions, and bringing their guns down on the governor and treasurer and the other inmates of the store ordered "Hands up." The hands went up immediately and the five men were marched out of the store and stood up in a row. While the hands were held up
