* The National Council of the Great Creek Nation signed a Removal Treaty February 12, 1825, by which it relinquished all Alabama and Georgia lands in exchange for lands in the Indian Territory (Oklahoma after 1907).

* To 1907, the School was coeducational. In 1907, the boys were sent to Euchee School, and elsewhere, and the girls only were retained. It has remained a girls' school to the present time (March 1941).

* In 1907, when the boys were all transferred to Euchee Boarding School or elsewhere, and the girls were retained at Eufaula Boarding School, there sprang up the general belief that the School was named "Female Seminary" and locally it was known by such a name. Later it was called "The Mission", and to this day it is often times spoken of as "The Mission". These two names, although locally used, have never been official.

* Miss Mary Morley retired from the School, as its head in 1936. Miss Morley gave more than thirty-six years of service to the Indians of the Five Tribes. She resides in Eufaula, Oklahoma. (March 1941)

Government Subsidies, and Some General Informative Factors
Pertinent to the Development of Asbury Manual Labor School, Eufaula High School, and Eufaula Boarding School

- 1819 March 1819, the first appropriation for Indian Education was made by Congress.
- 1828 Creek migration began 1828, and was practically concluded by 1836.
- 1832 April 4, 1832, Lewis Case and the Creek Chiefs while in Washington concluded the Removal Treaty. The Treaty stipulated that the Government must spend annually, for the following twenty years, the sum of $3000.00 for the education of Creek Indian children.
- 1832 July 9, 1832, an Act was passed by which Congress authorized the President to appoint a Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and he was to be under the direction of the Secretary of War.
- 1845 The Government provided $4000.00 for education among Creeks. Amount was used to send fourteen Creek boys to Choctaw Academy in Kentucky. Creeks objected to this procedure. They wanted schools within their own Nation. The Government promised that such funds could be used within Nation.
- 1845 In May 1845, Samuel Checote, Peter Harrison, and Daniel Asbury requested the Methodist Church Council to have Bible, Hymn Book, and Discipline translated into the Creek language. (As a method of teaching English).
- 1845 By 1845, there were ninety thousand Indians in the Territory; of these seventy-five thousand belonged to the Five Civilized Tribes. Few schools existed and small subsidies made.
- 1849 The Department of Interior was established, and Indian Affairs Bureau to which was transferred the trusteeship of the Indians from the Secretary of War was set up.
- 1870 This year the Muskogee Nation and Government agreed that the Government should pay Asbury Manual Labor School the sum of $70.00 yearly for each pupil so long as the sum did not exceed $5600.00. It was paid quarterly.

This year the School was moved from the original site on the acreage set aside by the Tribe when Asbury Manual Labor School was built in 1848. The new school was located on five acres, tribally donated, located on a hillside in the west edge of the City of Eufaula. This new school was known as Eufaula High School, and was coeducational. Grades one to ten inclusive were taught.

1907

This year the Eufaula High School ceased being coeducational. The girls were retained, while the boys were transferred to Eucheas Boarding School, Sapulpa, Oklahoma and elsewhere. The School's name was changed from Eufaula High School to Eufaula Boarding School.

1928

Creek funds became so depleted that the Government appropriated fully for the School's support, and has continued to do likewise annually.

prepare land for crops, plant, cultivate, and harvest, and they were also taught to grind corn meal. Girls were taught to "keep house", sew, and do dining-room work.

1858 Superintendent Ruble reports -- boys grind corn meal for which they are paid ten cents per bushel.

1858 At the close of school, public examinations were conducted with prizes of religious books given to those making high ratings.

1870 "No person shall be admitted to the Asbury Manual Labor School until he has attained the age of thirteen years; until he has attained some knowledge of the five rudimentary rules of arithmetic, and has learned to read in the English language easy words of three syllables".

1870 The 1870 Constitution and Laws of the Muskogee Nation, section 6 changed the contract so as to admit only male pupils at Asbury Manual Labor School 1870 This year the contract called for eighty pupils care.

1870 The Contract read "Boys to be taught agriculture and mechanical arts."

1877 Rhetorical societies meeting each Friday evening were an emphasized part of the curriculum. These were designed to "cultivate a pure literary taste to more fully arouse the student for the active duties of life."

1877 Small boys were taught to "sing kindergarten exercises". Large boys were taught to sing "glees".

1892 School was known as Eufaula High School, and this year marks the beginning of the era of the direct forerunner of the present Eufaula Boarding School. There were approximately eighty boys and girls enrolled. They pursued a rather strict academic course. There were no work shops since the School had been removed from the School Farm that year. Hence opportunity for agricultural instruction was practically eliminated.

1910 Enrollment was about one hundred pupils.

1914 A Home Economics cottage was constructed.
This subject was taught previously, however.

1920 Enrollment increased from one hundred to one hundred fifteen pupils.

1930 Enrollment was one hundred forty pupils.

1930 Kindergarten class and nine grades were taught.

1934 "Opportunity classes" in home-making courses originated for aver-age,retarded girls.

1934 School orchestra of thirty pieces organized, and piano lessons given to approximately fifty per cent of the girls enrolled. Indian church-song music taught.

1935 Band begun in kindergarten classroom.

Real Estate Holdings and Productions

- I. The School campus contains five acres located at the Western edge of the City of Eufaula. On this campus will be found all buildings of suitable nature constructed since 1892. The main dormitory and office building was erected in 1892 and is a three story structure of brick. The small commissary is a brick building and so is the dining hall, which is a spacious, well-planned building. The oil-paint house is brick. All other buildings are frame, and are painted cream with green roofs. Native, ornamental, and fruit trees make up the majority of the plantings.
- II. The School Farm is located one and one-half miles northeast of the City of Eufaula. It contains thirty-seven acres, all under wire fencing. In addition to forest trees and fruit trees which comprise the plantings, there is a fine pecan grove to which has been added a number of budded trees. The farm is used for vegetable gardens, alfalfa meadows, and pastures, in addition to the yards, lots, and paddocks required. An excellent herd of Holstein cows is maintained, some of which have held Indian service records. The milk is used for the school pupils. Hogs for butchering purposes are raised annually. Poultry for class projects is provided in a modern chicken house. At the School Farm, part of one of the buildings erected in 1889 still remains. In 1889, it was used as a commissary; at present it is used as a granary. It is made of thick blocks of native stone. This is the only remaining building of old Asbury Manual Labor School. The other buildings are all of frame, uniformly painted.

III May 6, 1938 a Wishing Well, of Native Stone, was builded on the Campus. It is located 83 ftt 3 inches west of the east surveyed boundary and 118 feet 2 inches north of the south surveyed boundary line. The base of this well is of solid rock and cement, and within this solid structure, about 18 inches above the ground level, there are deposited two glass fruit jars, with glass lids and each of two quart capacity. One of these jars contains The Daily Oklahoman, The Muskogee Phoenix, The Indian Journal, and the West Eufaula Church paper (in the Creek Language). The second jar contains a list of all employees, the positions held by each, and where Indian, tribe and degree of blood. It also contains a list of all pupils enrolled, giving pupil's name, birthday, tribe and degree of blood.

Eufaula Boarding School 1941 Data

Nine grades above the kindergarten are taught. In addition to the regular course of studies, much time is devoted to Home Economics. Each classroom, including the kindergarten, has full kitchen equipment and cooking is done in these regular classrooms. All classrooms have sewing machines which the children operate. Instruction is worked out on the Unit Plan, and these home-making activities are developed in the classroom, in addition to that taught in the Home Economics Department.

Arts and Crafts of different types are embraced in the learning processes of the girls. Looms allowing various kinds of weaving are in use. Beading and other kindred inheritances from former Indian culture have been revived and considerable skill has been developed by some of the girls. Cooking classes are in session in which the girls prepare and serve the oldest types of Indian foods of the Creek Nation.

The use of the Creek language is not discouraged since it is known that it is of great value in the home and community life of the pupils. Creek songs are sung.

Music plays a big part in the life of the school. An orchestra of thirty pieces and a band of twenty-five pieces are kept ready for public appearances at all times. The orchestra plays at the State Fair, neighboring Indian Schools, and public gatherings of various kinds. It has several programs of religious music with which the Indian church congregations sing, and hence this organization goes among the adult Indians in their Sunday church work and programs.

Many piano pupils are given sufficient training to play for group singing. This prepares the girls for assisting in church and community work in their own neighborhoods.

Educational excursions by all classes and groups are taken. These include trips into the country, and as far away as the state capital, Oklahoma City. Proper educational preparation is given the group before these excursions and suitable teaching follows.

Sewing is emphasized. Some girls eight years of age can use a sewing machine well enough to make their own everyday cotton dresses. Many of the older girls make all their own clothing.

Cooking is taught throughout the School, and also in the Institutional Kitchen. In addition to meat and vegetable cookery all types of plain bread and pastry cooking is taught.

The girls assist in garden planting and cultivating. They are taught to can the vegetables they grow.

The resident nurse and contract physician give series of lectures to the girls suitable to their various ages and needs. In the dining room and classrooms, the value of good food and proper eating habits are taught. The children assist in planning the menus.

A picture show contract is entered into with a local show manager, and the children attend for purposes of education and recreation.

The student body has its Young Peoples' meetings. Most of the older girls belong to the B.Y.P.U., and the remainder to the Y.W.C.A. They meet each Sunday evening. Sunday School classes are taught for all on Sunday morning, and they attend church services in the local churches of the town, or nearby Indian churches.

SOME CARDINAL AIMS OF THE SCHOOL, 1941

Most of the girls will return to their own communities and become home makers and integral parts of a community. Therefore, the School attempts to bend all energy toward preparing the girls for Life as they will find it and live it.

It may therefore be briefly stated that some of the major aims of the School are:

To Prepare the Girls:

- I. To become good home makers.
- II. To conserve personal and community health.
- III. To make good citizens and good neighbors.
- IV. To be good cultured people and enjoy life by serving others.

To aid best in helping the pupils to prepare themselves for in-school life and after-school life, the employees visit the homes of the girls, and attend various community gatherings with them. Parents and friends may and do visit the School any time.

History of Eufaula Boarding School Dates Back for More Than Century

Growth of Institution Keeps Pace With That of Indian Education in Oklahoma

By HUBERT RIDDLE
Special to the Phoenix

EUFULA, Oct. 11—The largest single institution in Eufaula and one of the least known is the Eufaula Boarding school. This school has a background as colorful and interesting as its history itself, entailing the growth of Indian education from a somewhat vague smattering of English and tribal legend into today one of the most advanced schooling centers in Oklahoma.

The school was started in 1821 in Alabama and from that date until 1899 the institution was known as financial burdens of the school, is also revealed in the past history of the institution. In 1819 the first appropriation was made by congress for the school. This allocation was $3000, which was to be paid for 30 years, under the treaty of the removal of the Indians from their home in Alabama.

Bible Translated

In 1845 the government approved an endowment fund of $4000 which was to send 14 Creek youth to the Choctaw academy in Kentucky. The Creeks objected to sending their youths to this school and the next year the money was expended on the local institution.

In 1845 Samuel Checote, for whom the city of Checotah is named, Peter Harrison and Daniel Asbury requested the Methodist church to take

The Stars Today

LIBRA—(September 23 to October 23)—Natives of this sign have outstanding talents which they desire others to recognize. They are emotional and impulsive, intelligent and talented. They are apt to espouse a new cause and through unwise enthusiasm experience trouble or embarrassment. Many have a sixth sense which reveals the thoughts and the feelings of those about them. They are even tempered, but may be impatient when compelled to submit to routine.

Sunday, October 12

Benefic aspects rule today which should be helpful to all who pause to think deeply of their individual relations to the state and nation.

HEART AND HOME: Revival of interest in religious observances is presaged by the stars. This is a favorable date for church going, most promising to all who study Bible history and stimulating to minds that seek the truth in any of its forms. The prophecies of Holy Writ will take on special meaning for all who study them. Through many tribulations the world is to gain spiritual vision and it has been prophesied that the veil between this plane and the net will become transparent.

BUSINESS AFFAIRS: This is an auspicious date for careful planning, a day in which bravely to face exact conditions prevailing in a world in upheaval and transition. It is wise to plan for the worst in post-war economic conditions as they affect the average citizen, the "worst" being business and disruption and readjustment which will require careful restoration work after abnormal conditions end. Astrologers foretell a long war, if conflict continues through the winter as the stars indicate that it will.

NATIONAL ISSUES: Labor is to be discussed with growing concern as this month brings about opposing ideas among members of unions. A split in one of the big organizations is forecast as a possibility. With Saturn in Taurus and Uranus in Gemini two ideas will rule workers. Saturn is believed to encourage those who refuse to work because of wage disputes while Uranus dictates freedom from all bonds that hamper efficiency. Crises in strike negotiations will be sensational.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS: Surprising turns in Hitler's war plans are prognosticated as the scales cease to give the dictator great balance of power in decisive campaigns of aggression. Warning is given that acts of treachery are to be expected. Again there will be clever unexpected movements of nazi troops. Berlin's chart is adverse for economic resources. More new treaties and programs are indicated. Complete changes in the aggressor's methods may be the Asbury Manual Labor school with an enrolment of only 25.

This institution is actively identified with the "Trail of Tears" era, for when this epic transpired, the officials of the Alabama school decided to move the institution to the Indian Territory for most of the enrolees were to be moved.

Move Began in 1829

Records bear out that the transit from Alabama to the Indian Territory began in 1829 and was completed in 1836.

In 1847 the first building of the small school was opened near what is now Eufaula. Trials and hardships aplenty were encountered by the zealous religious workers, on the school buildings, for at that time the school was subsidized by the Methodist church. Much of the material consisting mainly of brick and pine lumber was carted across the rocky eastern Oklahoma terrain by ox-cart from Fort Smith, Ark.

The first building was 34 feet wide and 118 feet long, and schooled an enrolment of approximately 40 the first, which grew into an enrolment of 100 by the next year, the records reveal.

The essentials of the educational policy of the school was reading, spelling, writing, arithmetic and vocal music, which was supplemented by religious education.

Examinations 'Tough'

The first record of student employment in the Indian Territory was at this Eufaula school, where in 1866 pupils could earn 10 cents by grinding a bushel of corn with a mortar and pestle, which of course was a tedious task.

In 1858 at the school, boys were taught the elements of common farm labor, such as repair of wagons and implements and the girls were instructed in housekeeping chores.

At the end of 1858 a public examination was held, with the parents and interested patrons present. According to the records, the examination was hard to pass, and the pupils had to pass these public exams.

That same year the school offered prizes of religious books for pupils making the highest grades during the semester.

No Children Under 13

The school passed a unique requirement in 1870, that no children could enter the institution until they reached the age of 13 years. Other qualifications they must possess were that they would have to know arithmetic, read English and spell three syllable words.

In 1877 the school organized the first rhetorical society, which was designed to cultivate pure literature, and the meetings of these groups were open to the public.

About this time the Eufaula school entered upon a rocky era. During the Civil war its buildings and campus were destroyed by the invaders, and its enrolment the year after the school was rebuilt dropped to a mere 70.

An interesting record of the government gradually taking over the fi-

Bible, hymn book and the Methodist church discipline translated into Creek, as a method of teaching the pupils English.

In 1870 the school received a great boost in its financial budget from the government. The Washington officials agreed to pay the school a per capita fee of $70 for each pupil, provided the money did not exceed $5600 in any one year.

In 1892 the school was moved from the countryside location, east of Eufaula, to a hill-top overlooking the town from the west. That year the school was renamed Eufaula High school, and pupils for day study were accepted. Mae McIntosh, an alumnus of the old Eufaula High school, is an instructor in the present system. Grades from one to ten were taught, and the school still continued to be coeducational.

Show Place of State

In 1907, the year of statehood for Oklahoma, the institution ceased to be coeducational. The boys were sent away to the Eufaula Boarding school at Sapulpa and elsewhere, while the girls were retained and the school renamed to the Eufaula Boarding school, with an enrolment of 150.

Today, under the supervision of energetic principals, the school is one of the show places of Oklahoma. Mary Morley of Eufaula, who retired in 1936, began the development stage, which has been carried on ably by Eva Lewers, present head of the institution.

There are now 12 separate buildings on the campus of the school, representing an investment of several hundred thousand dollars for the government. There is an administration building, which houses the office, and a large dormitory; home economics building, where cooking, sewing, arts and craft are taught; principal's cottage; teachers' club, where all the instructors reside; employees' home; laundry and kindergarten building; shops and garage; two commissaries; a 12-bed hospital with a resident nurse; children's kitchen and dining room; and the school building which houses a large auditorium, and motion picture show quarters.

Music, Athletics Stressed

The present faculty stresses the development of music and athletics. Two orchestras are the pride and joy of the school now. One, a rhythm band under the supervision of Mrs. Dora Flickinger, has entertained in eastern Oklahoma on numerous occasions. A more versatile orchestra, with 35 members, under the direction of Miss Lewers, also is well known over this part of the state, having performed at the Oklahoma Free State Fair in Muskogee on several occasions. Miss Lewers and Mrs. Flickinger are assisted by Mrs. Roberta

YOUTH, 12, EAGER TO JOIN U. S. ARMY AS AIR CADET

FORT DIX, N. J., Sept. 27—(U.P.)—Twelve-year-old George Atkinson of Mullica Hill believes you're never too young to learn.

A seventh grade student, he wrote a letter to Fort Dix training officer requesting information on how to enroll as a flying cadet.

The letter was sent to the 2d Corps Area recruiting office.

Willis, Gretchen Loeb and Ruth Bowers.

The school encourages the development of athletics, and even sponsors a basketball and softball team for the male employes of the institution.

Just recently Miss Lewers has embarked on a drive to develop and install an Indian museum in the corridor of the administration building. Already with only a few days' preparation on the project, she has procured many valuable articles of Indian lore and history.

The school maintains a separate division, on a 35-acre farm near the site of the first school building. Here most of the vegetables and dairy products for the entire school are produced. A model farm is carried on under the supervision of government employes.

Although rigid restriction of unidentified strangers to the school's campus is enforced since the nation's drive against sabotage, the officials welcome the visits of Eufaulans and other interested citizens.
