My dear Mrs Curtis - words give me to give comfort in so great a loss as you have sustained. I deeply feel and rejoice your sorrow, but experience
I sympathize, although they cannot

Dear Mrs. Cutlip -

Tonight I am thinking of you and wishing that there were somethings in this world that can heal a sad and broken heart. I know that you are brave and will meet this sorrow with true courage.

While I have not known your husband I have heard so much that I know he was a truly great man. He knew how to meet the discouraging things of life and made this old world better he has passed through it.

He was one whose lamp was lit and he flashed it so that the others might all the way, clear-

You have the memory of his love and tenderness to be forever with you - to be an inspiration as the days come and go -

Yours in loving sympathy

Dear Mrs. Cutlip:

We are very sorry indeed to hear of the death of Judge Cutlip. His loss to you, your daughter and the community, we know is great. If there had been anything that we could have done in his long period of illness to prolong his life and benefit to society, we would have been only to glad to do so. But it seemed that nothing within our power could be done.

We extend to you and Maxine our sincerest sympathy, and if there is anything that we can do for you in this period of sadness, we will be only to glad to do for you.

We extend to you and Maxine our warmest sympathy in your grief and bereavement.

Very sincerely,

Mrs. C. Guy Cutlip,

My dear friend:

Oh, how I do sympathize with you, in this, your great sorrow, and only wish I was near, so I could, as far as possible, try to comfort you. Honey, I knew, more than you ever thought, just what you were going thru, even at the district convention. I had passed thru several years, trying to "play the game" with a sick husband, and then, I, myself, became very ill. Truly, you do have my deepest love and sympathy. One can hardly choose words in which to say just how very much they do feel for you, but, believe me, I do, more than words can say.

It is no use trying to tell you to be brave, for I know that too, is hard to do. Only, you, can work all this out. Just be very glad that you have a daughter, some one near and dear to you, and for her sake, hold on to yourself.

Now, this is all very well for some one to try to tell you; especially one as weak as I am, but, I was so near this same terrible thing myself, well, I just, in a way, kinder know how you feel. I, rather, knew why you did not go to Washington, and, I am sure, now, that you are glad you did not go.

Trusting that you do keep well, yourself, and again saying I love you and wish it was so that I could be with you, and saying that I will not expect an answer to this letter, atleast, until for some time, I am, as always,

Your good friend,

Bess Stubblefield

My dear Maxine :

I just read in the morning paper about your losing your father, and Mamma and I hasten to send our deepest sympathy to you and your mother. We know too well she bears ache that you are both enduring at this time. I wish I might write something comforting but words are so inadequate and only time will help, - I know.

With much love
From
