

(Did most of your children marry into the--?)

They married into the white.

(Did any of them stick to the Indian race--they all married white people?)

Yes, except one, the next to the oldest daughter married an Indian.

(Chickasaw?)

Choctaw, a full blooded Choctaw, from Atoka County. She is dead. She died in 1949, I believe. Her husband is still living. He lives in Oklahoma City. He's still living but she died in '49. Of course, she had children and I had to take them and raise them.

(Oh, you raised them?)

Raised three of them.

(They're up and gone now?)

Yeah, they're married and got a family. They live in Oklahoma City. One lives in Ft. Worth, and two lives in Oklahoma City.

WENT TO ARIZONA TO WORK

(You were telling me that you lived in Arizona for ten years at one time.

When did you move to Arizona?)

Well I first went out there in 1940.

(Oh, 1940, we're really getting up there now.)

Yeah, when I first went out there.

(Well, let's see the war broke out in 1941.)

Did it break out in '41 or '42?

(December 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor.)

That's right, when Pearl Harbor was bombed. Well, at the time I went out there to work for an ice company out there and I was operating an ice plant. Of course, they were paying more money out there than they were here. So, I worked for them for two or three years. No, two years and then I quit and came back.
