

And did take it.

(In fact they were taking it at the time.)

Yeah, yes sir. I--well once it was right for the Indians, during a long time ago. (not clear) I believe they got to 'doin' that.

(Yeah a lot of them could save themselves and saved their lives if they had just known.)

Probably never did know. I imagine that is what happened to all them niggers.

But Peter, he was too smart. He was going up there where he wasn't supposed to be. He told all about it after it was all over.

MORE ABOUT CEMETERIES

(Mr. Fields, something else I wanted you to tell me about, too. Up there about a half-mile or so, south of the old town of Dodge, is a cemetery there with a lot of people by your name in there. Now, is that some of your people?)

Was it Fields?

(Fields.)

South of Dodge? How far south?

(About, well, look like about a half-mile or so, not very far. Just trying to find some of the names of those and let's see--see, which one is the oldest here. Ezekiel Fields, born in 1789. Died in 1839. Now he was the first one buried there as near as I could tell.)

South of Dodge?

(Yeah, and then there's lots of younger ones. There's D. Fields and Lena--)

(Static on tape)-- There was a home, right down there. There's a big spring down there, this cemetery you're talking about is about and east of Dodge.

They call it Fields cemetery.

(Fields cemetery.)

Uncle Bud got his out there. My uncle is out there. And as far as I know, there's them others older than that. I don't remember. 'Course one time
