

(Lot of hard work getting that ground cleared by hand.)

They told you about old man Houston--John Houston. Old man. You give him an axe and would work hard using an axe and he took care of it too.

(Well.)

He wiped it off you know when he got through with it and greased it good. They don't do that anymore.

(No. They didn't own very much, but what they did own they took care of, didn't they?)

They'd know how it come.

(No, the generations today could certainly take a lesson from those folks that lived in those days.)

Well that's one (not clear) outstanding.

(Yes.)

Her first husband had about 400 acres of land.

(Well.)

Good farm. Had everything. But time and things have changed now. Better (rest of sentence not clear)

(He sure does.)

(Not clear) passed a law that they can remove the restrictions and these restrictions you wasn't allowed to move. Nobody allowed to handle that title, but you. They give you the right to sell and that's what they done, they couldn't pass it.

(That was the greatest mistake.)

Worst mistake they ever made there and the Nighthawks turned out and voted against it. They wanted to kill that bill, but they couldn't do it. Contrary outfit, used to be lot of 'em down around Jay there. Nighthawks they called 'em. Used to have them big wild dances you know and crazy gatherings people over there, somebody would complain every day about it.

(End of interview. End of Side B-Part I.)
