

and rejoicing.

(What I was trying to say was something that you all thought up yourself. You know, the other chapters are all white. Of course, they couldn't have no Indian dances. But, I mean, I imagine they had something else such as something that goes along corresponding with that. Then--did' the--you charter--you organizationn--you only had to have the--you received your charter from the national headquarters or the state headquarters?)

Yes.

(What?)

We received our charter from the national. It is also a national charter of the American War Mothers.

(And you found that all those people back there, they all were helpful to one another and you got along pretty good, you might say.)

We got along very well. The older ones was more considerate than what the people are today.

(Then, like these War Mothers, when they---)

Yes, War Mothers.

(What?)

The American War Mothers.

(The American War Mothers, when did you all begin having your annual dances?

On the Armistice Day? Do you remember--I don't quite remember. It has been some time ago?)

It has been. I guess it's been 20 years since it started.

(Un-hun.)

We have an Armistice Day every other year. And the auxiliary has theirs in the between time at the post.

(Well, before then, they didn't have the post up there. They just about had
