

has passed away since the last convention. We have memorial services.

(Was there any at these conventions--did you see any other Indians from any other states?)

Yes, we see these other states surrounding.

(I mean from other states. I don't mean Oklahoma.)

Oh, no.

(Like Montana.)

No, they don't come.

(Just Oklahoma?)

Besides, they don't got any up there.

(They haven't?)

I was told last time that there was a chapter in Montana that want to organize the War Mothers so this lady she went and said she would be glad to organize--open a chapter with a charter, but they have to go by-by, have meetings. They were months. Some people have meeting once a month. Some have twice a month, every two weeks. She told them they would have to have president, secretary, treasurer, and treasurer and secretary, and sergeant-at-arms to carry flag. And she told her that, "Well, I don't guess we could have it organized then since none of us know how to read." This is in Montana. So, they are not going to organize because they cannot read. I guess they are real elderly people, I guess.

(Yeah, that don't seem like it would stop them from having a chapter, whether they could read or not, is it?)

Don't look like it. She told them they had to have meetings and so and so, but I guess they do in order to have meetings. They have to go to conventions. They just said---

(They could go to conventions and talk, but, maybe, some of them can't read
