

We lived over in that--our house pretty close--. Me and some more boys went down there one Sunday. Stayed till after dinner and fooled around a little while.

(Yeah. Now they had singing along with it, don't they?)

Yeah, I like to hear them sing. You can tell what the song is by the tune, you know. But you can't understand the words sung in Cherokee. I can't. They can sing good. I like to hear them.

MORE ABOUT CHANGING TIMES

(Well Glen, in all this time you've seen time sort of change. What would you say made the most change in this country? I mean this brought about the most change?)

Oh-h I don't know--you mean like what people does now for a living.

(Yeah)

Well, they raise cattle. What there is can--some on the welfare to help them out a little.

(Do you think times are getting any better or--?)

Well, I believe they are. I don't know but seem like they're better than they were then.

(Uh-huh. In spite of everything people say it's a little bit better than it used to be.)

Yeah, I think so.

They could be better yet than what they are.

(Well, what would you say--say right now--would be, something to try to improve--a persons trying to improve.)

Well if there were more jobs--stuff like that you know--wants to work--think that's about all there are to do. If you ain't got a job to work well you're just out.

(Well-1--)
