

(And they like this life better than anything else that they get any place else?)

They like this life better than any place else or anything that you'd give them. Now all an Indian worries about is long as an Indian's got a bite to eat. He'll never be worrying around. But just like anybody else...he's satisfied right here.

(I wouldn't...this...this new house right here we can see from here.

One of the new houses the Cherokees built. It's one of the three bedrooms, modern, concrete block house. He's got that well kept hadn't he? Nice yard. /unclear/ spring down here. Got beautiful trees all around.

You got a mountain in behind there. You got cattle out here. I don't know what more a man could want do you?)

No. Really.

Now that's where the barn set when I was a little boy growing up. Where they build that house down there?)

Yeah, right there's where we had a big barn setting there. I, we had horses, lots screech owls. /laughter/

WIFE AND RELATIVES

(You know, you were talking about this humor at your house last night.)

I remember we were sitting there talking about what we were going to do at that arts and crafts meeting last night. I said, "Well, what we going to do?" And everybody, there wasn't a sound said, for three or four minutes. You wife finally said, "Well, how you going to write that down?" /much laughter/)

Well, you take on my wife's side of it. They're...they're pretty well educated, the Grits. You take Levi Grits. Did you ever know him?

(I knew of him. I knew Franklin Grits.)

If anybody ever got their part as Indian money, now her Uncle did, for he was -- course he went down to penitentiary for robbing a post office.
