

remembers when the Cherokees were always going to see one another and were concerned with each others welfare.

. Her grandfather was Charley King. He wore long hair and had blue eyes, even though he was a full blood. She also had a brother who had blue eyes when he was a little boy, but after he got older the color of his eyes changed to brown.