

to eat. Keep a little myself.

HORSE OPERATED THRESHING MACHINE

(Interruption)

Did you ever see a horse operated threshing machine?

(No, I never did. Now that was before my time.)

They used to have them here. But I never seen them here in a long time.

(Well, how did they operate?)

I had to go to Germany to see them.

(laughter)

In the war, the first war.

(Yeah.)

I was in Germany and I seen one over there. I don't remember just how they had it hooked up. But (words not clear) up on the second floor.

(Well.)

And down here had an elevated shaft about like that. A two-speed (words not clear) when the horses walk why it would turn the outfit. And they had him fastened in there and he was just a walking all the time, but he wasn't going no place.

(Kind of on a wheel like thing. The wheeled turned and he stood still.)

That's right.

(Well, I'd like to see something like that. But we'll never see it though.

They're gone, long gone, I guess.)

SAW PEOPLE WEARING WOODEN SHOES

I imagine there's some over there yet.

(They might have. Yeah. 'Course they got a lot of old stuff over there.)

Well, over there was when I was in the army over there. You see them wearing those old wooden shoes.

(Yeah.)
