

EARLY SCHOOLS.

(Uh-hum. Now Bunch, they have a school here?)

Oh, yes. It's (right up the road. You came down by it, didn't you? You come from Stilwell?

(No, I come across the mountain.)

Well, it's up here about three miles. We had to compromise to get a high school with Lyons up here. They had a school, and we had a school here. And we compromised and voted to build it up there many years ago. I run four heads through it.

(Well, at one time, they did have a school here?);

Oh, yes. It's the Baptist Church right around here now.

(Well.)

They use it for the Baptist Church. It was the Wing School house.

(The Wing School.)

Yeah, and they had a little school over here they called Grey School. Close to right over here where you said your uncle lived.

(Yes.)

And then they had a school south of here, closed now, one of them intermediate school. Called it Kentucky.

(Uh-hum.)

They built a new building down there, good one. And then there wasn't enough students that went to school way down there. That was Kentucky School (word not clear). And then they had one up at Lyons. They called (words not clear). It's up here. They call it Cave Springs. Cave Springs, I believe they call it--Eugene now.

(Uh-hum.)

And they run bunch of buses, oh, to Rocky Mountain, oh---
