

(A Ross.)

(interruption)

(Was all your grandparents, they come on the Trail of Tears?)

No, no they didn't.

(Now your great-grandparents, I guess it was.)

Yeah, they did. Great-grandparents. Yeah, when my step-daughter's two boys come home last summer and they put out trout line across here, you know. And they caught one catfish that weighed forty-three pounds.

(Forty -three pounds . (interruption) People apparently have gotten along well together down in here even though it does seem removed from the towns and highway. 'Course I guess they, there has been bad people everywhere you go.)

Yes. That's about right.

(Sometime or another. But you don't seem to have any down in here.)

No, everybody has been pretty good around here.

EARLYDAY COMMUNITY ACTIVITY

(Does this-Pumpkin Hollow community have a community center for the people to gather in now days?)

No. Well, they have this--its Tooley now. They have stomp dance there, you see. And I think it's 19 of July they have a big stomp dance there, you know.

(Yes, ma'am.)

That's the only place I know that they (word not clear). It's a stomp dance, you know, they have--like they used to have.

(Well, let's see, now where is the Bridge Community? Is that on top of the mountain?)

Yes.

(South of here.)
