

Recorded by: B. D. Timmons

Transcribed by: Blanche Paukei

Meeting Leader: When submitted. Then we're going to be awful hard to get along with. And any change, I would cover this in justification to the authorities and file a proposal stating that there is a change in their prices, and change in lumber prices. That I'm having to live with you see and so this is the reason plus adding 220, running the flue through the attic and such items as this. And, course that running anything attic exactly how many want flues and how many just as soon not have them. This may be a plus for 'em.

(Participant, man:) It's possible.

Leader: Let me say this. Looking on down the road as far as the Housing Authorities and Commissions. Now we know you're getting paid well and just really getting fat in this position.

(Participant, man:) People think we are. Laughter.

Leader: But some of you that says, no today, might say yes tomorrow and you could get into some pretty hard arguments, from this point of view. Why did you give in? See and you're not drawing enough salary to take this kind of abuse and criticism you could wind up with. And my suggestion on this thing..if you're going to put flues, put 'em in all twenty houses. And forget it.

(Participant) Whether they use 'em or not.

Leader: Right. Use it or not. It..it would cost them a little bit more money, I'll grant you but like I say and you know what's going to happen as well as I do. That this ole boy said, "I'm never going to need a wood stove." Right now he's got a good job and he's running on butane. But if the plant moves out or he get sick or something else and his daddy's got 400 acres of oak timber that he could be burning and save