

INTRODUCTION

(May 2, 1969. Today, I'm visiting with Saugee Grigsby, a seventy year old Cherokee of England Hollow, Adair County, Oklahoma. Mr. Grigsby talks about the many events in his life time.)

CEMETERIES - EARLY DAY SETTLERS

(laughter)

(Back over in Scrapper Hollow, there's an old cemetery over there, Scrapper.)

I believe it goes under two names.

(Yeah.)

Chewie and Scrapper.

(Chewie and Scrapper.)

Uh-hum.

(Now, let's see the oldest one there was Archibald Scrapper, I guess. Yeah.

He's the oldest one. You've been over there to that place, I guess.)

We used to own that place.

(You did?)

Uh-hum. My daddy used to own it.

(Yeah.)

His wife's children coming in---

(Yeah. And that was your daddy's place at one time?)

Uh-hum.

(Before the Scrapper's had it or after?)

Chewie's the one owned it then.

(Oh-h, Chewie's.)

Frank Chewie.

(Well, uh-hum. Archibald Scrapper, they called that Scrapper Hollow.)
