

And he was given that place up there.

(Uh-hum.)

He was about a quarter Cherokee and mulatto. He didn't like during his lifetime to be called a nigger.

(Well.)

No, he'd get out and get pretty red hot.

COURT - LAW AND PUNISHMENT

(What old Cherokee district was this in? Was this Flint District or Going Snake?)

I believe, (word not clear) around what we call Strawberry Spring that was-- I believe it was Going Snake what we call Whitmire place--was Fort Council-house.

(Yeah.)

Way years ago, I'm just telling you what my daddy used to tell me.

(Yeah.)

At the old man Whitmire place, they used to lash them to a tree and whip them when they do something they shouldn't do.

(Well.)

Women, men, and all.

(My goodness, they were pretty hard on them then.)

Oh, yeah. There used to be a log house back in the field from where the Whitmire Cemetery is. Two room log house and a hallway between, and they had a porch clear across the east side of the building. And during that time, they had seven killed. And they had them just strung out on the porch.

(Well, that's the old Whitmire's place.)

Course, that old building, done away with.

(Yeah.)
