

The one that was sheriff, his name was Frank Adair.

(Frank Adair.)

His father, during his lifetime, was a U.S. Marshal.

(Hum.)

And he helped to capture Ned Christie.

(Yeah.)

The time that they had the big battle over there. Well, that fort there, you know, they had got a cannon from President way back. And they used that to help them rout him out of that building.

(Yeah.)

So, he had places, you know, where he was just keep shooting.

(Hum.)

And they used that cannon there to rout him out.

(Yeah.)

And they used that cannon there to rout him out.

(Yeah.)

And whenever he--they did so hot on him--why, he went through place in the floor, you know. And he was about to get away, but was so anxious to get all them he could kill. He thought, and that's when they killed him.

(Yeah.)

They shot him through his nose.

(Hum.)

(static) One what they call Braggs country too. There's some mean people up there in that part.

(Well, hum.)

Shoot one another down just like they would game or something.