

and he could not find any sort of game that he could eat. So he walked a little farther and he came upon a village of prairie dogs. And so he told these prairie dogs, I know a new song and a new dance, and I'm going to teach you these.

But the prairie dogs were very hesitant about learning this new song from Sainday, because they knew what he did in the past. So Sainday pretended that he wasn't a bit interested in teaching the prairie dogs the song, and he began to walk away.

And so the prairie dogs became very curious and at last, they begged and begged Sainday to teach them this new song and dance. So Sainday told the little prairie dogs; in order to sing this song and learn the new dance, you must close your eyes. And this is the song that he taught the Little prairie dogs:

KIOWA VERSION:

ENGLISH VERSION: (And this song said?) The prairie dgo and the prairie dog has short tail, and this is the end of my short tale.

One little prairie dog girl became very curious as to why they had to close their eyes. And so she opened her eyes and as the little prairie dogs were singing Sainday was walking behind them and hitting them on the head. And so she gave a cry of alarm and all the prairie dogs scattered and Sainday could not catch any more prairie dogs for his food.

(End)