

(Had she ever seen any of the little people?)

I don't know whether she ever did or not. Used to hear them singing out there in them bluffs, you know, down there next to the river.

(And she said they had a real sweet voice?)

Yeah.

(Did they mostly sing church music or just, you couldn't tell what kind.)

I never did--that's something I didn't ask, you know, what song they was singing but she could hear 'em sing, you know, she said. I reckon that's what it was.

(Do you all know of anybody that ever saw any of the little people?)

No, I don't know.

(Have you ever heard?)

Maggie: No

I sure wouldn't know about that.

(Oh she said they--did she say they used to live down around those caves?)

Uh-huh.

(That's down around Arkansaa there?)

No, up here about fifteen miles.

(Oh, they have some caves us here?)

Yeah, they's---(Laughter)

(We'll have to go up there and visit some night so we can see the little people.)

That's where that--I was telling you about that Hog-Shooter(?), you know.

It's a ways out of south of Tahlequah.

(Uh-huh, yeah)

(tape skip)

(--Arkansas is.)
