

Maggie: Yeah

(He had to pull it off of him!)

Maggie: Uh-huh, Yeah.

Yeah, he was down there on Barren Fork, too, somewhere when he done that.

Maggie: Boy, I mean he was suffering, you know and they come brought him down here first beginning, you know, they had to bring hospital. Then Dan Hooley went up to (static) he was aching so bad. Then Hooley said, "Well we come back tonight and I bring the medicine." Said, "I doctor you." So, we went back, didn't we.

Uh-huh.

Maggie: That night and you just stopped to watch, didn't you?

Yeah, boy he said he quit hurting right then.

Maggie: Yeah.

(Oh it must be--you must have powerful medicine.)

Maggie: Yeah.

Well it must be awful good I know I doctored many of 'em and--

Maggie; You doctored Ross, too, didn't you?

Yeah.

Maggie: Ross Farmer.

Yeah.

(Uh-huh.)

He wouldn't hardly do what I told him.

(Oh when Ross got bit last summer? Well, I believe it was summer before last, wasn't it?)

Yeah, I believe it was.

(And he thought he got bit by a water dog.)

Well, you know, that's what Ruth thought, too, I don't know now. I don't know what bit him to tell you the truth about it. He said he was kind of in a--
