

settlers demanded it, you know, wanted it. And it was through legislation and so forth and treaties that they gave it up, you know. And they re-settled them here. And actually they had no other place to go. That's all the place they had to go. We was moved here about the same time your tribe was. I think we were moved under the same, Omnibus Bill they called. They had that covered all those removals from Kansas. Let's see, I don't know, there was, well uh--the Lower Shawnee, I guess that's what you call the Black Bob bunch, you know from Kansas that came from Kansas. That intergrated with the Cherokee. Didn't come down until several years after all of us moved out of Ohio. And I don't know how long they lingered in Kansas.
