

his homestead in Kansas., (coughs )

(What, this stuff we were talking about awhile ago, when you came down after the run, what kind of Indians wereliving, where did you settle and what kind of Indians were living there?)

The Kaws. He bought a fraction right on the river.

(Which river was this, now?)

Huh?

(Which river?)

Arkansas.

(Arkansas.)

Arkansas River.

(Isn't it west of Newkirk there?)

Yes. We lived on the west side of the river, the Kaw country. It wasn't settled up when we come there.

(What part was the Kaw country?)

Well it runs from the river east of Newkirk, it's six miles east of Newkirk, the river is. And it runs from there along the river. The river is border of Kaw country.

(The southern border or the northern border? )

No, the western border.

(Western border, okay.)

And it runs to, uh--well, it runs to, I forget that town's name, little town.

And then the Osage's country joins it on the east and the river on the west.

(Does the Arkansas cut out or it it another river on the west, the west border?)

The Arkansas border is on the west border of the Kaw country.

(Okay.)

And they came from Topeka to settle up. My father-in-law used to tell me
