

No, I don't remember the way the run. Just remember her telling about them.

(Do you ever recall the Kaws saying anything about the whites coming in and settling that part of the country?)

No. I didn't talk much with the full-bloods.

(I just wondered if Jim might have passed on some comment that they might have made.)

They wasn't much of a talker. (laughter)

(Short pause)

SCHOOLS - MISSIONS - EDUCATION

They didn't have any public schools there. They had to go to the mission.

He went to the mission.

(Do you recall the name of it?)

Just the Kaws.

(Kaw Mission or ?)

Uh-hum. It wasn't named like Wheeler Mission or something like that. You know that Wheeler Mission is down in the southeast. Well, uh--Jim's uncle's daughter went to the mission down there at Konawa. Used to be the Sacred Heart Mission. And a bunch of the girls went down there from Kaw. And one of them took the rheumatism so bad she couldn't move. So she had to come home.

(Didn't most of the kids go some kind of school?)

Uh-huh.

(Just that one at Kaw or did they send them out to other places too?)

Well you've heard of this Carlisle School, haven't you?

(Yeah, back in Pennsylvania.)

Well, Jim had a cousin, he's not living now but his son is. He went to Carlisle, took his education from there. So did Jim Thorpe. You know who Jim Thorpe is.

(Yeah. Did Jim ever go to any type of school?)
