

here for the stomp dance?) \

Well, I don't know. I just couldn't tell you. One that leads the stomp dance, he died about two years ago.

(Hmmm, what was his name?)

Joe Hogshooter.

(Joe Hogshooter.)

(static--children, in background)

(Yeah.)

(sentence not clear)

(Yeah.)

All Abraham's boys dead.

(Yeah, they're all dead now.)

Them boys---

(Yeah.)

None still living.

(Yeah.)

OLD TOWN OF "CHANCE" - OIL SPRINGS

(That place of Chance, was that an Indian place at one time?),

Yeah.

(I wonder how it got that name?).

Oh, I just couldn't tell you. They just call--used to be post office, you know, a fella by the name--he's German--was here. Fella by the name of Chance, you know, I guess, they just name by him. He run a store up there, and blacksmith. He was German, full blood German.

(And they had post office there too.)

Yeah. In Cherokee county, Oil Springs, they called it, was there.

(Oil Springs.)
