

It was my case, wasn't too bad she said, she had the real bad cases but now they can talk real, seems like it does something to your tongue. You can't even talk, pronounce your words right. Well, this black handkerchief is supposed to be her x-ray. And you can't find a black handkerchief. You have to buy it by the yard then you have to make it.

(Humm. Does it have to be any particular size?)

Yeah, it have to be square, square silk handkerchief.

(Doesn't matter how big it is, just as long as it is square?)

No, it have to be pretty big so she could put it over head and look through. Then she told me the next time I came to bring her some shawl, a dress shawl and a blanket and a pair of moccasin, Indian moccasin. That was the doctor's bill.

(What's a dress shawl? How does that differ from a regular shawl, any other shawl?)

Well, they've got wool blankets that you wear for everyday. And they've got nice black string shawl that you wear for your good dress, black string shawl. Then she doctors with seven things. She had to put a table out there and put your seven things on there. We gave her dress material, two blankets, seven silver dollars, everything come to seven, seven...

(Now is this different from your payment?)

No this is the payment.

(Part of the payment.)

Yeah, first, second and third payment.

(Are there set number of things you give her on the first, second and third payments?)

Yeah.

(I mean one thing the first time or...)

Yeah, we went three times and each time we bring her mocassins and shawl.

Then Indian rouge and Indian perfume, that's the second time.
