

Maybe you can read that writing I can't. And --

You're looking at it upside down, Rosie. (Cleve)

Well, I've got it so she can see it.

Oh, uh-huh, I see.

Uh-huh. And this is--I thought they was one in here. This must be the --

(Well, besides all the accounts that are carried in there, isn't there some other information that he kept?)

Well --

(Maybe about people who were born?)

Yeah, they's people who were born here. I've got Toot's mother. Let's see-- but I don't know just exactly where it's at.

(Who are you talking about when you say Toot?)

Mr. Olds. (Laughter)

(Mr. Forest Olds.)

Yeah, Mr. Forest Olds, our chief. Now let me see--here's the payment of the Miami tribe, Mary Pooler's child was born 28, 1890. And some of them I can't make them out. Charley Welch, I think's child was born 19th of December, 1887. I don't --

Cleve: Yeah, Welch, was a Miami family.

Yeah. And Labador. Ain't that their name? Labador.

Cleve: Liberty

Huh?

Cleve: Liberty.

Wife of Tooder --

Cleve: Liberty.

Uh-huh. She died May the 28th, in '91.

Cleve: You Liberty's ain't you Bob, Quapaws?

There's some mention of them in there.
