

/word not clear/ kind of flu. And lot of people died.

/unidentified voice: No, I don't know. All I know is the Asian flu what they had. And --/

No. They don't call it that.

/And this other flu what they had. What was it?/

(Just an epidemic of flu?)

First had the flu. Family all died.

(This was back in the thirties.)

Been long time. In 1917, I think it was way back when war was going on in Germany.

(First World War.)

First World War. At that time.

(Oh, it just killed off whole families, didn't it?)

Uh-huh. Yes, Sam told me, my husband, you know-- He said /words not clear/ they just pick it up bury it every day. People, just a family dying. Whole family.

(It must have been a lot stronger then than it is now.)

Yes. Oh yeah, that's what doctor told them.

(Cause seem like people get sick, but you don't hear of too many people dying with it, you know.)

Huh-uh. No.

HOME REMEDIES - ROOTS AND HERBS FOR CERTAIN DISEASES

(Well, the Indians, they used to doctor their diseases a lot themselves anyway, didn't they?)

Yeah. My dad used to get some roots, oh not roots but what they call some kind of weeds. Call them hoarhound.

(Hoarhound weeds?)

Uh-huh. He boil it and make syrup and it's really something. And he boiled and he boiled and then he put like a syrup, you know. Well, syrup alright. And we drank it. It's really good. That time first World War they had.
