

now.

(It's too late then, isn't it?)

Uh-huh.

(Well, Myrtle, do you know of any medicine for sinus trouble?)

Sinus trouble?

(Up in here, you know, when it drains.)

Uh-hum. Yes.. /sentence not clear/ Sinus is what, my sister told me, I know she said she pulled a hair out of her daughter's hair where she had her stand against a tree. Right even /words not clear/ to the tree there, you know, and pull that out. She said it got well from sinus.

(Oh, the little girl had it?)

Uh-huh.

(Does it matter what kind of tree you back them up against?)

No. They didn't /words not clear/ said tree.

(And just pull one hair out of the top of their head?)

Uh-huh.

(Do you have to put it someplace or throw it somewhere?)

No, throw it away.

(Just throw it away. I've heard about mistletoe. But mistletoe grows up in the tree. Is that good for /words not clear/?)

/words not clear. / What to do. I know I was thinking about old lady that was showing me that medicine. /sentence not clear/. I've the best medicine for nosebleed. --smoke it.

(Let him breathe it in.)

Uh-huh. /words not clear/ He never did have the nose bleed again.

(Oh, in other words you don't boil that. You just take it off the trees.)

Uh-huh.

(And you put it over a fire?)

Uh-huh.

(And let the smoke /words not clear/ off of it. And you let the person inhale that /words not clear./.)
