

sake of your father and mother, think of those things what I'm telling you. Just remember. Think of those things. As you go--go in life. That's the blessing that God gave your mother, to you. Not only to you, but lots of little boys like you.

Like this boy here. Be good friends to him--this boy. Always play together with one another. Talk good to each other. That's what I'm telling you. Look out for your health. I see you. You're not deformed no way. I want you to have a good mind. For the sake of your mother. Understand God. Understand Him. Understand the Good Word. The Good Word, understand that. I'm glad that I can talk to a boy like you. I talk to my grandson just like I'm talking to you. I sit down. I'm not going to wait until he's twenty-one--to talk to him over there. I start talking to him when he is little boy. I have no trouble with him. I have no trouble with him. I have no trouble with him, for him to go to school. Maybe you're in sixth grade. But he's in seventh grade. He passed--it's first year in junior high. He was proud that he got diploma. I have no trouble with him when I talk to him. They remember those things. And I want you to remember that. Your schooling. You're going to be a young man. When I'm talking this way, maybe, the old people say, "You're going to be a young man. You're going to grow up." That's the best thing I can tell you.
