

was." Said, "They was good friends." And he said, "Well, hell, I heard my daddy talk about him lots of times." I told him who I was, and I had kinfolks lives at Stilwell. That old man Tom Rider said, "By god, you must have been named after old man Tom Rider up there at Stilwell." I said, "Yes, I was. I guess I was named after him."

(Yeah.)

Said, "I know him and raised up with him." Said, "He's good man too."

I said, "Yeah," And I said, "This Zeke Proctor, I guess is your grand-daddy. He used to come down hom lots of times. Him and my daddy was great friends." "Boy," I said, "I hear my people talk about Wilson Rider lots and lots of times."

(Yeah, old George Sanders, he was quite a man, I guess, got around a lot.)

Yes, he was.

(Finally died over here at Fort Gibson.)

Well.

(Way back about 1918.)

I forgot. Lots of times I forget things.

(Yeah,)

Goddamn, I started to get something down. Damn, if I don't forget what I went in (laughter) I was born there, but my people left when I was just kid, and I never did go back no more, but I had lots of kinfolks. My daddy's people lived there. Yeah, and those damn Christies.

(Yeah, there was a lot of them in that country too.)

That oldest sister--there was two of them, Annie and Mary.

(Yeah.)

HAMILTON BROTHERS KILLED

Mary married a fella by the name of Bill Hamilton, and I don't know some-
