(Now who is it that you call by nɘheihɯ ?)

That's my uncle's wife--my mother's brother's wife.

(Would you say that again?. How you call your mother's brother's wife?)

nɘhei   nɘheihɯ

(Is there a meaning to that?)

That means your "aunt." Now, when I'm referring to my mother's sister's husband, I refer to them as "my father." Even though he has an individual name.

(Bittle: Jess, on this word, nɘheihɯ , do you use that to their face or when you're talking about them?)

To their face.

(Bittle: What word would you use if you were talking about--?)

nɘhei

(Well, if you're talking to your mother's sister, or to your mother's brother's wife, any of these people, would you ever address them by their name--to their face, call them by name?)

Only when the people that you're talking to about them may not be well acquainted with them do you refer to individual names.

(If you're talking to your mother's sister's husband, what term would you use?)

I'd just said it a moment ago--it's just the same as my father.

(Bittle: Would you say it again, Jess?)

né.sɘnɯ.. -- When I address him directly, I say né.xɯ. ; or "old man," bɛhiʾihíinɛn -- That's the address that we use, of late of your mother's sister's husband -- bɛhíhihíinɛn --

(Would you say that again?)

bɛʾi.híinɛn -- "old man."

(Again.)

bɛhiʾi.híinɛn -- beʾ--i.--hii -- nɛn (Breaking word up into parts).
