

I didn't know his father. I just know his sister. She was--Cedar Tree was her name.

(Was that his full sister?)

Yesh, that was his full sister. And he had a brother.

(What was his name?)

Willie Meeks.

(Was he a full brother to your father?)

Yes, he was.

(But your father, you don't know his mother or--?)

I don't know his mother; I don't know his father. Just--

(Were they Arapahoes?)

Arapahoes, um-hum.

(What about your mother's mother--do you know her name?)

My grandmother's name was Lump Forehead. And her father's name was Sleeping Wolf. My grandfather.

(Do you know what her mother's name was--Lump Forehead's?)

No my great-grandmother.

And this Road Traveller, that was my mother's uncle. The one that shot himself.

(Would that be the brother of Sleeping Wolf?)

No, that would be his brother-in-law. It would be a brother-in-law.

(What about Lump Forehead--would he be a brother of Lump Forehead--this Road Traveller?)

No.

(Was Road Traveller married to a sister of Sleeping Wolf?)

No, but you know the Indian relations that way, you know. See, this--my mother's mother was a sister-in-law to my other grandmother. I told you her name was Punkin. And that was her brother, that Sleeping Wolf--that was her brother--
