

Yeah, it was hard. Now my son-in-laws, I talk to them. I talk to them, yeah.

Well, I got mixed--white man and Cheyenne--and I just welcome all of them and talk to them. But not much. Just when I have to! Just when I have to.

(Well, your brother, Samuel--was he older than you, or younger.)

He was older than me. He's next to that Amy Nash.

(How much older was he than you?)

I think he was about three years older than I am, because he was bigger than I am.

(Were you allowed to talk with him--when you were children did you play together, or--)

Oh, we used to talk together, and stay together. But we never did talk much.

(Is there any reason they have for--?)

I don't know. I don't know why. But that's the way they taught us. And then I notice they used to not be among their son-in-laws or anything. I guess that's all I know about our people.

(Do you know the children of these other grandmothers and grandfathers--Sitting Bull and Arrow--?)

I just know a few of--well, I was a little girl. Old Man Arrow had two daughters and two boys I remember. When I go out to play they used to chase me back. One was Minnie. Minnie Arrow. She had two daughters I know. The other one was Jane--Jane Arrow.

(Were they older than you?)

Yeah, they had children.

(Did you say they used to chase you?)

Yeah, them boys, my uncle--his boys.

(What was their names?)

One was named Andrew. And the other one was Martin. That's the Arrow kids.

(Do you know the name of their mother?)
