

night by 11:30. When we got down there they had three tents pitched out in the yard. And nothing in them tents, just, no clothes or nothing. And we told them that we had to have covers to--or some kinda beddin to sleep on. And so they took us one place and they took us to an auditorium where those show girls always room and they took us in there.

(Mr. Whitehorn) It was a centennial

(Mrs. Whitehorn) Uh-huh. There was a centennial.

(What year was this again?)

1935

(1935)

And so they took all the woman folks on one side and the men folks upstairs. And that night we told them we didn't have nothing to eat. So, they gave us milk and cookies for that evening. And so we got mad and the next morning why they took us to a hotel and make all arrangements and then everything went on nicely from there and then we had a place where we could eat. And then they took us to a place where--I don't know what you call that place, but anyhow it's a place where they showed all these things you know.

(Exhibit Hall?)

I guess that's what it was. 'Cause they had a whole lot of things there. And then they gave us place, gave us a room there. One place, had it fenced off with a rope where us Caddo sit round in there and then sang some songs and put on a little dance. So, we did that and then they divided us people, us group. And the next night, the chief and the princess had to go to--what would it be--where they put on program and they went over there. There was lot of other representatives from different states, you know, the young ladies that represent
