

The younger ones now, I got a son here in Norman. He never goes in the peyote house. Don't never pay much attention to it. And there's good many of 'em that way. It's losing out. The younger ones, they don't care nothing about it. Don't think nothing of it. They go to white church. But most of the time they're in a honky-tonk. (They don't understand Peyote. They don't understand what Peyote can do for 'em, do they?)

No. They don't. They never been around to listen long enough to know, to study. My mistake for not bringing 'em in when they were little. I thought, well, what good I do would be carried on and they'll make good people. But it didn't turn out that way. So they always figured it's my fault and I had a good wife. We raised them childrens in a good way, but things didn't turn out. I ain't got but one left. My wife is gone and I married another woman now. She's a good woman too.

(Just got one boy)

One son and then I've got five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

DUE TO POOR HEALTH MR WHITEHORN DOESN'T MAKE PUBLIC SPEECHES AS FREQUENTLY AS IN THE PAST

And I got along this far. Been sick so much here last couple years. I used to be in good health all these years till last couple years now. I just been falling a little. My health is failing. There's a lot of things happen to me different times.

(I remember that dedication of the museum you make that speech up there. I was up there and I thought that was a really good talk.

That was a good speech)

I was sick then.
