

yourself. Always have people, looking around, you know, to see if their enemies are coming, you know. Be prepared, you know. Always have to have lot of arrows and everything. All the time, they was always in the, you know, worried, you know. Them other tribes they were, too, I guess. So, go on like that, and later on they--what I started to tell you about this arrow. They use it for good purpose to kill buffalos, some--think to eat, you know. Well, later on, I guess the way they say, this Satan--you mind him. You pray to him. He'll learn you how to--even if you ride in a battle--no bullets or nothing will hit you. He give you that power. He promise you that. He going to do it. They learn him to be that way and then he'll double-cross you, they say. But God, you know, He's the only one, you know. He tell you one thing, that's it. But this fella he's different. They learn him that way. There's lot of 'em they have to respect him, you know. Well, he learn'em how to get away with horses. Go out, when to go, and how to get away. He'd help'em. Maybe he'd have them other people going the other way, maybe asleep or something. They'd get away. He had the power to do all these things. Make some of them people wonderful men just by doing that. But the only reason they have to--they didn't earn it just sitting down and not doing nothing. They didn't do that. They go out and fast. They go out and fast in the woods. What they want to be, they fast. Punish themselves. To try to earn what they striving for. They go out and no eats, no water. Maybe four days, they figure four is their limit. Some of them do go eight days they say. You go out there, no eats, no nothing, you get weak. You still pray about what you want. You want to learn how to catch good horses, you want to be brave. You have to be a good hunter. You want to be that. That's who you're giving your life,
