

Apache name?)

Well, it's not her name--that's a nickname--they call her t'ahé.

That's--kind of a nickname.

(What does it mean?)

"Cry Baby."

(Could you tell me again how did they treat you while you were a baby? You know, how they took care of you and everything?)

Well, that's kinda--that's way back there when they didn't have too much physicians--doctors around. And it's kind of a--well, it's horses and wagon days. It take doctors too long to come out, to see the mothers--expecting mothers. Well, anyway, some of these womens, they don't agree with (having) man doctors, way back there. They prefer ladies--elderly ladies to deliver childrens. I tell my kids how I came into this world. Emma Hunter that's ---sébax^{re}-- Yeah, and Old Lady zih--I don't know what's her English name but Zih, that's her name.

(Yeah, I've heard of her.)

Them two, they brought me into this world, back in 1910. So them days we didn't have no kind of cosmetics, or what you call them--baby oil, or anything. They took a piece of clean cloth, or wool or broadcloth--I don't know what it was--but they wrapped us up in it. And they tie us up in a bundle. They put sometimes left over grease or some kind of oil on. It's not manufactured oil. It's just homemade oil. It's beef tallow grease or hog grease or whatever it is. That's what they put on us.

CARE OF NAVEL STUMP ON NEWBORN CHILD

(And tell about that medicine they use to get on the--to clean the navel.)

Well, these toadstools you find in pastures. There's several different kinds. They all got names. But these old peoples, you know, they
