

place, Fairland was just a small place, too.

(Was there a place at one time called Prairie City?)

Yes, Prairie City is what's known as Ogeechee.

(Ogeechee.)

That's east of Fairland.

(I've heard of that, I believe.)

Yes.

(Uh-hum. Well, it was a town at one time I guess.)

Well just a, just a--

(A country town.)

Yeah, just a little wide place in the road. Wasn't really a town.

(Yeah. Course now days everything has changed so much from fifty, sixty years ago, you can't find any of the old places hardly.)

No.

(I don't guess there's anything left there of Ogeechee.)

Maybe a stockyard.

(Maybe.)

I don't know just what's there.

(See, it was on the railroad, wasn't it?)

Yeah.

RELATIVES -RELATIONSHIPS

And I had some relatives live right in there. And they come see me ever now and then.

(Yeah, the one time over there in that country that I know of and acquainted with is the Flints.)

That's who I'm talking about.

(Oh, it is.)

(Yeah, Bill Flint.)

* Yes, Bill Flint is eighty-nine years old and he's not too active.

(In those early days I guess, the neighbors looked out after each other
