

(Beef liver.)

And he come up and Bud went down and looked at and he seen it and he said, "Oh, Uncle Dan there's a fish down there as big as a horse." We went down there and there it was. And we had two more and they had to put it on a pole to carry it to the camp. It was so big. And they carried it on their soldier and there was a puddle of water out there we kept it in till we got ready to come home. And then we come, we lived on Ninth Street then.

(We got a picture of that hanging on the side of that old Ford car haven't we?)

Yes.

(That old car.)

Yeah. You got it?

(Someplace, I think you have or I have, I've seen it someplace.)

If I ain't got it. I think Bert and Lucy's got it. If they ain't got it, it may be in that --

MATTIE MADE MANY SHIRTS FOR OSAGE PEOPLE

(What do you remember that you enjoyed or some of the funny things that happened at the Indian camp with the Indian people? Do you remember? You knew a lot of them didn't you?)

I knew all of them that lived in that Indian camp at that time. Some of them I can't remember their name, Little Wing, Big Elk, Wyanashi, and Wahtashi and Wyahocki and

(Did you ever have any trouble with them?)

No. I never did but one time. I done lot of sewing for John Logan. I used to make shirts, Indian shirts, you know, and one day I was just in a hurry. He wanted to the shirts and wanted them done that night. So we took them home that evening, me and your Aunt Anna. Went down there and he was looking over
