

Yeah, on her. She wouldn't know it. And she'd set up sometimes until ten or ten thirty. She'd think it was nine o'clock. (Laughter) Then when he got ready to go to bed he run it back.

(He run it back. He used to get up four o'clock in the morning and we'd sit around and wait for daylight.)

Four o'clock in the morning ever since I was a little kid. And I had to get up and grind coffee on the old mill side of the wall or one of them you set in your lap. I'd grind coffee and set the table but after I got big enough to make bread standing on a box and make bread. Ma was sick so much when Sil was a baby. Grandma helped, but she was so --

TRACES ANCESTRY

(Grandma, my great-grandma?)

Your great-grandma.

(What was her name?)

Grandma Sarah Johnson. Her maiden name was Sarah Duncan. And her mother's maiden name was --

(Mead wasn't it?)

No that was Dad's.

(Was it Daniel?)

No. I got it down. Anyhow Dad's mother was from Ireland. Her name was Mead and she come here. And here and Grandpa married in 1835. I've got all that down.

(My great-grandma.)

Your great-grandma.

(You've got all that down some place?)

Well, I'll give you a copy of it.

(Copy of it. I guess I've got it there somewhere in a box.)
