

He saw the woman he said. "And I don't know where that woman went." (Words not clear) on the side of the hill.

(Hum. About when was this?)

Oh, it was about in '16, I guess, 1916.

BLIND MAN - BIG EYES

(Do other strange things happen around here?)

Buster, Buelow, Buster said he would never stay all night here because too many ghosts in this valley. You all had a blind uncle ain't it. A blind, do you remember him. (Speaks Kiowa.)

(I barely remember him.)

He used to come from your grandpa's house to Red Stone. He said he always see ghost. But he's blind. (Laughter.) He's blind and his name's Big Eyes. Justin: Big Eyes or (speaks Kiowa.).

(Is that the same thing in Kiowa?)

You know the Kiowa's got a bad of habit of naming people the way they are. If you're cripple why you're names Cripple Indian. Like up here, this lady was cripple. Her name's Cripple Lady. (Speaks Kiowa.) Ain't it?

Justin: Yeah.

And if you ain't got one eye they call you (speaks Kiowa). In English it's One Eye.

Justin: And if you're dark they call you (Speaks Kiowa). (Laughter.)

Yeah, if you're dark they call (Speaks Kiowa). People always call him that.

Justin: (Sentence not clear).

(Laughter.)

(That's real interesting.)

(Conversation in background -- Laughter.)

Tell it the way you know. And somebody else might know it different.
