There are many decomdent. of the weich family who were among the original Cherokees to come to the Indian Territory from North Corolina. At one time many of them lived in the Cowskin and the Peters Frairie country in the northeast corner of the Cherokee Nation. Now most of the decondents are widely scattered.

Between Pryor and Strang, in Mayes County, is the old abandoned Welch School. This old school was named for one Bart welch, a Cherokee who lived back in the early days of this country.

Mr. Weich has relatives still living on the Indian Reservation in North C rolina. He tells of the existence of a large white rock back there snaped in the form of an eagle with spread wings and tail. Its mistory and details are varue, but it is very old and sub osedly used in some ceremonial rite. Ausley remembers long ago that his father had obtained some of this same white rock of chalk like substance, from Georgia and used it to make white lead fencils.

Ausley recalls days when ne was a student at the Cherokee Male Deminary. The school football team frequently played teams from other schools. students from their sister school, the Female Deminary, were not allowed to come to the games. Many of the students had brothers at C.E.S., and naturally the girls were inderested in the outcome of the games. A set of Signals were devised by use of flag waving to keep the girls informed of progress and scored. Henever the boys made a score, the signal was given and the girls had a hearty cheer, sithough lney could not see the game.

He tells of an Indian be tising in the Lucha country. On a see sin ay the Chercke 2 gath rict their church and bugin the baptional ritual. After the indeor ritual, the minister leads these to be bentized in single file down a long arrow trail to the cold clear waters of the creek. The converted are clothed in clean white sheets. All during the beptismal rites the Indians sing 'hymns. He says this was one of the most impressive coremonieshe has evident.

He tells that in is found days ne used to go with other Indians to gather hucklebrried in Courthou e Hollow and on the hillsides boardering Peters Prairie. Long ago this berry was plentiful in that country and the Indians used to look for to berry season.
