room and board, which a dollar was a dollar in those days.

(Now we're getting back to the employment at the 101 Rancy at Ponca City, Oklahoma.)

When I was there, I met Tom Mix there and we were pretty good friends.

And what he enjoyed most, as I noticed, was roping--steers as well as calves. My line was brong-busting, although that I took part in his program, too, and I roped quite a bit with him but nothing I ike he ever did, or nothing compared to the time that he was making. Tom Mix couldn't go out and do the things that he wanted, like I did, because he was the foreman of the ranch at that time. And, also I want to bring in one particular person here, by the name of Joe (Bill) Pickett. He was one of the worlds famous bull-doggers, in fact he is the one that introduce this sport this bull-dogging. And be being so famous at this bull-dogging meant that he even made trips to Europe and places like that. But I had that same opportunity also, which I turned it down, and I did not go to the places they asked me to go.

KIT CARSON SEMINOLE BILL AND THE KIT CARSON WILDWEST SHOW:

After I left the 101 Ranch, I took the opportunity of traveling, which is known then as Kit Carson's WildWest Show. And we had traveled over the entire United States, including putting on a show here at my hometown, Wewoma, and at that time my wages was $60 a month, board and room. And I think that I probably worked for them about two years. And this must of been on our second trip when we got into Tallahassee, Florida, that I left the show there at Tallahassee, Florida, and came home. My wages were $60 a month when I worked for Kit Carson Wild West Show.

Jess Allis, which he was a Shaynee Indian. He and I were great bud-
